A missing contract worker who was unaccounted for during a fire that burned for nearly 24 hours at an Enterprise Products Partners LP plant has died, the company reported late Wednesday evening.

The man's remains were discovered Wednesday after the fire subsided. His identity was not released in a statement issued by Houston-based Enterprise (NYSE: EPD). Several news agencies had reported on Feb. 9 that the missing contract worker was Rick Shaw, a Baytown resident.

The fire at the company's Mont Belvieu natural gas liquids fractionation facilities about 35 miles from Houston on the Houston Ship Channel started at 12 noon on Feb. 8 and had burned itself out on the morning of Feb. 9.

"Enterprise offers its condolences to the family and friends of the worker and will be working closely with authorities to determine the cause of the fire," the company said in a statement.

The storage facilities on site that caught on fire are owned jointly by Enterprise and Duncan Energy Partners LP (NYSE: DEP). The plant has a capacity of about 305,000 barrels of natural gas liquids per day.

The company said the main part of the complex that houses other processing facilities was not damaged and that the company is working to restore the unit to full operations. The cause of the fire is under investigation.
